Who is shaping the food choices of the future?

A BNF conference that will bring together thought leaders in the world of food and nutrition to consider who (and what) is shaping the food choices of the future.

Thursday 12th Oct 2017, 10.00 - 16.20

Governors’ Hall, St Thomas’ Hospital, Westminster Bridge Road, London SE1 7EH

http://bit.ly/2qHv0qV

@BNFEvents

H.Gibson-Moore@nutrition.org.uk

+44 (0)207 557 7930

Programme

Introduction to set the scene

Prof Judy Buttriss, British Nutrition Foundation

Agriculture: Overview of major developments past, present and future

Tom Hind, AHDB

Case study 1: How innovation is helping to deliver the public health and sustainability agendas - protection of arable crops

Prof Robert Edwards, Newcastle University

Case study 2: How innovation is helping deliver the public health and sustainability agendas – the work of the Agri-EPI Centre

Dr Robert Merrall, Agri-EPI Centre Ltd

Case study 3: How innovation is helping to deliver the public health and sustainability agendas – dairy cows

Prof Ian Givens, Reading University

Manufacturing: Overview of major developments past, present and future

Prof Ian Noble, Mondelez

Case study 1: How innovation is helping to deliver the public health and sustainability agendas – reformulation

Emma Hanby, Campden BRI

Future trends in retailing and shopper expectations

James Walton, IGD

Retailing: Overview of major developments past and future

Judith Batchelar, Sainsbury’s

Understanding how to change consumer behaviour to meet global food and public health challenges - public engagement

Sue Davies MBE, Which?

Sustainable nutrition: Changing how we value, grow and consume food

Mark Driscoll, Forum for the Future

www.nutrition.org.uk